solved the secrets of "cover up" and "shift" success in one game and could rescue the decision with one more trial.

The Brothers are now looking forward to the Thanksgiving Day game with Washington University, as that is the name of all "mainstream" college football. The school if the college eleven warranted it. He has November 29 open and has not given up his hope of a strong team that has that date open, too.

Among the smaller teams, things are progressing with satisfaction to all concerned. Though High School has several men out of the game, only one of them, a senior, is expected to return. The team will not be fit to play against Manual Training School next Saturday and Smith Academy (Ore.)

The Academy boys are improving so much in speed and team work that they stand a 75 per cent chance of beating the team. The experience of many has is called at the aid of the second half on Thanksgiving morning.

With the possible exception of the proposed game between the Denver Westerns and the Harvard Gardeners, the Washington University game will be the event of the local football season. The game between Washington and Allegheny State University is to be played in the city in order to attract much interest or to show the real work that each team is capable of.

Several changes in the Christian Brothers' line should attract attention. The seven at quarter back is a rather doubtful change, but the line is expected to be strong. The line is wonderfully fast. Charlie Hickey, who replaced Sam, is not much heavier, but he has more speed. He is a good runner and ability to take hard knocks. He earned a position on the team by his great run and touchdown in the game with Merion-Sims. But Thixton also did great work in that contest. Hickey played at half back in that game and did the honors of that position like a veteran. He is hardly heavy enough for the work as half backed Washington and Allegheny have three clever backs in Mordan, Brockmeyer and Cunningham. Every little thing connected with the line is given consideration, and the comparisons that are drawn by Coach Stone in choosing his men for the big game are so fine that the average football follower fails to see where some of the advantages which he claims are located.

The aggressiveness of all the Christian men is remarkable and can only be accounted for by the fact that they all are together and naturally become infused with the spirit which is given the most encouragement in the school. There is another reason that might account for it in that the regular eleven plays practice games with the second team every week and the sixth eleven team is vexed with as much vim and determination as though they were playing teams that were serious rivals in the College. It becomes natural for the Brothers to make every play a winning one, and every runner has to do some fines work in consequence. This same aggressiveness is sometimes termed "dirty work" by those who have had no taste for it and found that it was harder football than they had bargained for, but it is drilled into Eastern elevens continually. The men who fail to show it much in the season is soon relegated to the ranks of side-line spectators. Perhaps more men are dropped from the squads of his country every fall for lack of aggressiveness than for anything else.

Washington University has shown itself in its games this fall, although not with quite so much unanimity as the Brothers, and the game with the Allegheny Westerns game. The eleven is just beginning to settle down after many mishaps, and all Smith boys have hopes of being victorious in the end. The struggle between the Academy and the High School is assuming the aspect of the annual Yale-Harvard game in miniature. No matter which team shows the best work up to the day of the game they always have a close and bitter fight for the leading "prep" school honors. At present Smith seems to be out of the running, but almost certain that the team will surprise everybody by playing a plucky, determined game, and at the same time. High School will not appear to be playing as strong as usual, although it is really playing harder than ever. It is just now with Yale and Harvard, when one eleven is supposed to have the "clinch" it will seem to play inferior ball that it has shown all season, while the supposedly weaker team will take a big brace and put up a wonderful game. Truly, a very pleasant surprise to see a large figure in the result of all big games.

The Manual Training School seems to take a slump after a winning game and this is badly beaten by teams with which they have been playing. The large number of Manual players who attended practice in the last week was seven. The boys who were not present in the game, should not quit in that way, as they played themselves into a position where they have a chance to make a comeback. The team that has been made on the gridiron since the days of Joe Howard and the Lanesys.

There seems to come a time in the development of every athletic team, and the following of the team get discouraged. The reason for this is in the mind of one of the players. The player who has this attitude is the indirect cause of this slump. Up to that game the team had been regular and had been winning. The team that was beaten after the Columbia game the individuals remained confident, and in the practice game they were able to win. The game of the best football that has been seen on the college gridiron this season.

On the 11th of November, on the heels of R. Two-thirds of the variety men were out on the field that Thursday afternoon. Mike and the boys were in the gymnasium and kept most of the gridiron. Several of the strongest men on the team took all of the practice time and were able to get their hands and arms strong from playing the ball. A game they put up from day to day. The team that was beaten in the game at the University, and the first attack of the blue film first followed. Saturday afternoon the team was able to win the game and put up the best game.

Years ago the developed winning team type of game by whiching often swept her opponents of their feet. In those days the players were getting off the ball. And often before the opposing unit were in their proper places, they would have been back and be cranking away at some point in the line. There is no doubt about the effectiveness of this type of play if taken by the opposing team unwares oftentimes, and it inspired the team that practices this kind of play to call it "the game of the week." It is entirely devoid of this type of play, Jim. We are, at quarter back, while diver in the game, which is a fairly slow in running the team, but is the best in that line in New Haven.

Now, in the coaches, early in the season, took precautions to avoid slowness of the backfield. They changed Yale's method of running the rush line. Formerly the Yale backs, when waiting for the signal, leaned lightly forward with their hands on their knees, just as the sprinters do when in the marks. When they are ready for the play they spring into the turf, and are bent forward resting on the tips of their fingers as the play begins. It is claimed that this position enables a back to shoot more quickly for the rushes, but that while in this position his legs are less cramped, his breathing thus being freer.

It is with this style of charging a line the Yale back line is always slow until it has been raised to some unsatisfactory level. It is not a question of possibility that this back line will be quickened in future Yale plays; for two backs have been named who are already being bound to play a line looking quite like this.

It does not mean that the Yale team is in a hopeless condition or that the Yale coaches are discouraged about the future of the team. It is only a question of time in that roughly finished condition which will secure the final polish by the time the team is ready to play its worst at such a time. Defects develop which seem certain to be fatal unless they are corrected, and there is no underestimating why the line should not round into the Yale rushing game.

Yale reaches that form it will then be a question of time, but not of the team itself, for which Yale's chances will depend.

UNIVERSITY'S FOOTBALL TEAM.

[illegible][illegible]

Yale has always stood with Princeton for the reputation of being the most democratic of all the great universities. The rumors of all this are rumors about New Haven that all is peace and good cheer in this respect here. It is not true. The undergraduates are not so sanguine. They are not so sanguine as the faculty. They think that the men in charge of the team will do all they can to get the team into the public, but in private there have been many grumblings. It is openly asserted that the team will bring a bad name to the university and its societies, and that the eleven has been hampered all this year for that reason, as well as for the reason that the year has been a failure.

It is unfortunate, this is the case, and as unfortunate as unfortunate if there is any portion of the students that believes it to be the case, whether they are right in their belief or not. The fact that the team is the sport of an eleven which is becoming evident in Harvard, and which, it is claimed, has been the cause of the team's failure here, although some people claim that there is just as much growing at Harvard when a team is not as good as when it is.

GROWING BY RULE

It Seems That One May Increase
His Stature

From the London Express.

Among the many laws of nature which man has hitherto been unable to control or alter, the law of growth is the one differing most from those which concern the growth of animals, and, more especially, of the human race.

The vegetable kingdom, to be sure, has yielded up its secrets to him one after another, and he has succeeded in learning to assist the working of nature to a remarkable extent.

But, unfortunately, no amount of "forcing" under glass comes will aid animals of any sort, and the growth of man, on the contrary, we know beyond the shadow of a doubt that under such conditions they will not only grow less but will live a short space of time shuffler off this mortal coil.

The truth of the time-honored proverb that by taking thought no man can add one cubit to his stature, however, now appears to be seriously challenged. For, there is nothing in the recent investigations of Doctor Morton, of the bright particular of the Sprague, of the city of Philadelphia, in Paris, the observation will soon be related to the fact that these "Spragues" whose meaning is rather metaphorical than Scientifically correct.

Dr. Victor Springer has come to the conclusion that if taken in time, people who are threatened with "stumpiness" or "stiffness" can be kept from becoming at least average-sized men and women.

The man who "finds a way" to effectively resist the effects of "stumpiness" can serve well of his fellows; and it is probably this thought that led Doctor Springer to do his experiments.

Dogs formed the subject of this eminent scientist's first experiments. Proper food, water, and exercise, and the use of a purifier purifies ordinary food and care and other special food and novel hygienic treatment, and the results were as follows:

There was marked increase of growth, varying from two to three inches, the other animals increasing about an inch. These experiments revealed one important fact, namely, that the food which is prepared in the ordinary way, and which is being prepared as food, produces a powerful effect on the bony system. He discovered, therefore, that the food which is prepared as food should always be fresh, and the food should be used as soon as possible after preparation.

After this, Doctor Springer began experimenting on children, and in this he was successful. He has found that children, especially infants, upon children, receiving plenty of fresh air. This is absolutely essential to the health of the child, and on the day outdoors, but in the bedroom at night. Air in sleeping-rooms becomes very stale, and this stale air gradually diminishes the strength, thereby materially feeding growth. The influence of sunlight has to be taken into consideration; and even colors must be taken into account, due care being taken to avoid colors which have a depressing and enervating effect.

We, in the rash and scurry of modern life, have not always been able to give colors have on us; but the ancients studied the subject more carefully. For instance, the Egyptians, who were a very practical people, because of its solemn and impressive effect. The third way in which to insure increase of growth is by the removal of all obstructing organs of the growing child. The organs must be kept free from all obstructions, and the child must be able to breathe.

Not infrequently cases occur among children in which the pharynx and adjacent parts of the respiratory tract are so diseased that the children are stunted and weakly the reason is because the penetration of the air is impeded. The removal of the obstruction is the most important factor in the growth, is improved.

It should be borne in mind that a child requires much more oxygen than a man. Moreover, there is ample testimony in proof of the fact that children who have been born from whose breathing organs obstructions have been removed is usually no fewer than those who have not been so treated. In the months following the treatment than in the case of children who are in some degree of obstruction. It is therefore of the necessary amount of oxygen.

Of course, there are other and subtler factors in the growth of children. These important facts are worth noting.

WRITTEN FOR THE SUNDAY REPUBLIC.

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 10.—Although the Missouri Tigers have been playing in rather hard luck of late, still they are confident of victory in the big final game with Kansas in Kansas City on Thanksgiving Day.

The defeat at the hands of Nebraska was not unexpected on account of the weakening of the Missouri team by the disqualification of so many of the players through their failure to attain the required standand in their class grades.

Half a dozen of the best plays on the team were dropped just a few days before the Nebraska game, and consequently several best positions were filled by green men. It was, however, one of the best contested games of the season, and the victory was in no wise discouraged by the result. For this time on Mr. Murphy will have no more difficulty by reason of disqualification of players, and he hopes to wind up the season with a team that will be a credit to him.

Considering the material from which he has been called upon to make a team, he has been eminently successful. The majority of the players are now wearing the old gold and black have had only previous experience on the gridiron, and some of those with experience had only played on the second and third teams. It is a credit to him to whip them into any kind of shape promising well for the future. Physically the men are in the pink of condition, Jenkins being the only man on the team who has been in the hospital for several days after the Nebraska game, for the reason that many of the players took advantage of the permission to go home and vote.

The next game that he has had to play is with the University of Texas, Texas is very desirous of a game with the Missouri team and wished to come here to play them. The Texas team is a very strong team, they are very heavy and they would not be enough of a drawing card to pay out the money of the players, will be in Austin on November 19.

Texas has a very strong team this year.

IRISH JAUNTING CARS.

A long line of vehicles, outside cars or cabs, some of them battered and shabby, others sufficiently well-looking, was gathering on two sides of the green, says Kay. The first of the jaunting cars, as you know, is "the car-drivest of kind in the world." Francesca and I had our first experience yesterday. It is easy to get into a jaunting car, for it is like clutching the rail with one or both hands but we took for our model a pretty Irish girl, who looked like nothing so much as a bird on a swaying bough. It is no longer called the "jaunting," but the outside car, and there is another charming word for it to the world. There was formerly an inside car, too, but it is almost unknown in the smaller towns. An outside car has its wheels practically inside the body of the vehicle, like a motor car.

This definition was given us by an Irish driver, but lucid definition is not perhaps an Irishman's strong point. I could only say that the passenger sits on one side the wheels on the one, inside on the other. There are seats for two persons
